[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] COMORN, KING GEORGE COUNTY, January 7.—The Potomac river to-day presents a scene rich and rare. Several days this week the wind blew steadily from the outheast, causing a very high tide to break the ice from shore to shore, and Stiff's Wharf, at Chatterton, this county, has given away under the great pressure of ice and now lays a mass of ruin. For twenty-four hours a large force of men have been actively engaged in trying to rescue the valuable scantling from the restless ice but all efforts have failed. This is one of the most important way-landings on the Potomac, and the magnificent wharf just destroyed was completed here only a few months ago at a very large cost and even under the most favorable circumstances it will not be possible to rebuild it sooner than the first of April, so that the vast quantity of country produce and the many hundreds of passengers from this section to Washington and other cities can resume passage via this point.

THE POTOMAC FROZEN SOLID.

[Special telegram to the Dispatch.] [Special telegram to the Dispatch.]
ALEXANDIMA, January 7.—The Potomac river is still frozen solid, although twenty-four hours of the weather we are now having will considerably soften the ice. The steamer Wakefield, of the Lower Potomse route, made an attempt to make her way up the river yesterday, but found the ice too heavy, and had to put into Quantico and send her passengers and freight up by a special train over the Washington Southern railroad. A number of loaded schooners are reported in the Lower Potomac, and tags fitted with ice-plows have gone down to bring them up.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

DENSSYLLE, January 5.—The weather continues very cold here. Ice is between six and seven inches thick, and the various nonds are covered with skating parties, ladies and gentlemen. By the by, our pastor, Elder Minter, had a severe fall upon the ice a few days since. He went out to bring to land a little girl who had been carried out upon the ice by some party in sport and left to make her way back, which she was afraid to try, and begged that somebody would come to her help. As Elder Minter is notorious for his philanthropy and sympathy for all in trouble, he went for the little miss and took her in his arms and started back, when his feet slipped from under him, throwing him flat of his back upon the ice. The first part of his creation which struck was the back of his head. The Elder is a tail man, and measuring his fall from foot to head, it was seventy-six feet.

A snow set in here yesterday and continued to a late hour last night.

The Rappahannock was frozen across. Steamers are retarded and have not been able to go further than Tappahannock. The whaves along the river have been generally damaged by floating ice. VISIT OF THE ARCTIC COUPLE AND

Our Wholesale Merchants Are Progressive.

The Richmond office of the Snow, Church & Co. Collection System is in Shafer's building, Tenth and Main streets. This system is the largest and most reliable for the collection of slow accounts of wholesale merchants in the world. There are twenty-three general offices, having a trust company of their own to guarantee prompt payment of all moneys collected. Each office employs a law firm, making a specialty of commercial law for constant consultation. Montague & Dawson are counsel for the Richmond office. This office has only been open three months, but is already handling the collections of more than fifty leading wholesale houses.

AN INTERESTING CASE.

On Tuesday next in the Hustings Court will be commenced the trial of one of the most interesting cases that has occupied the attention of that court for along time. OURANNUALJANUARYSALE MUSLIN AND CAMBRIC UNDERGARMENTS Begins To-Morrow.

This occasion is always looked forward to with great interest by the ladies, as it affords them an opportunity of securing UNDERGARMENTS which are not made up merely for effect or show, but for actual wear. Every garment sold in our establishment, no matter at what price, is warranted to be of best workmanship, perfect-fitting, full length, and made of only first-class material.

The contract for the manufacture of the garments was placed long before the rise in cotton cloths, so you reap the bene fit of our timely purchase, as there is no advance in prices here on that account.

In addition to our large variety of garments for ladies we also show a complete variety of MISSES' and CHILDREN'S UNDERGARMENTS, as well as DRESSES, &c., &c.

COMPLETE OUTFITS OR TROUSSEAUS FOR LADIES AND INFANTS constantly on hand, or, if so desired, can make them to order on shortest possible notice in design required.
